Board announces 2012 registration fees

The Psychology Board of Australia (the Board) has set its 2012 registration fees and limited fee increases within a CPI rate of 3.3%.

As the National Scheme is funded entirely by registration fees (there is no ongoing government funding except for part of the scheme in NSW in which there is a co-regulatory arrangement), fees need to be set to enable National Boards and the AHPRA to meet their responsibilities under the National Law.

Board Chair Professor Brin Grenyer said that fees are set to ensure the Board can continue to provide robust and safe regulation of psychology in Australia and to protect the public.

"The purpose of the Board is to protect the public by ensuring that the 29,000 registered psychologists in Australia are adequately qualified and safe to practise. This includes registering General, Non Practising, Limited and Provisional Psychologists, setting registration and professional standards, and investigating notifications against psychologists," he said.

In setting its budget for the 2011/12 financial year, the Board has reviewed all registration fees in consultation with its finance and management committee and AHPRA. The Board has limited the fee increase to CPI, so the annual renewal fee will be $403 from the 30 November 2011 renewal period.

"The Psychology Board of Australia will continue to waive the application fee for psychology provisional registration in all states and territories to reduce the burden of fees on this group", said Professor Grenyer.

In consultation with the other nine Boards under the National Scheme, the Psychology Board of Australia has reinstated a late registration renewal fee from 2011-12 (this had been suspended for the first year of the National Scheme). The late fee will apply to practitioners who apply to renew during the one month 'late period' built into the National Law and will be charged at 25% of the renewal fee, recognising the additional costs to AHPRA of managing late renewals. It will be payable in addition to the annual renewal fee.

The Board also approved a Fast Track application fee. The fast track application was introduced this year to assist practitioners whose registration has lapsed but who wish to remain in practice. This fast-track process is open for one month after the end of the late period. The fast track fee will be 50% of the normal application fee for registration and will be payable in addition to the registration fee.

In addition to the work of the Board, fees are also used to support the continuing work associated with introducing the National Scheme and providing new services that help Boards to protect the public and guide the professions. For example, in 2012, AHPRA will be working with National Boards to pilot and introduce audits of practitioner compliance with National Board registration standards.

The 2012 fee schedule is published on the Board's website.

Under the National Law, the Board sets its fees which are then agreed by the AHPRA Agency Management Committee through a formal health professions agreement.
