

National Psychology Examination Committee

The Board has implemented a national psychology exam (the examination) to support applications for general registration, as outlined in the Board's General registration standard.

The role of the National Psychology Exam Committee (NPE Committee) is to provide advice to the Psychology Board of Australia (the Board) on the development of the national examination for the measurement of a minimum level of applied professional knowledge of psychology to obtain general registration.

The functions of the NPE Committee are to develop the national psychology examination multiple-choice questions and to contribute to policy and curriculum frameworks and the development of resources (such as the reading list).

NPE Committee appointments are made by the Board, under the Health Practitioner Regulation National Law, as in force in each state and territory (the National Law). The NPE Committee consists of nine senior members of the psychology profession and includes members of the Psychology Board of Australia and members appointed through an expression of interest process. NPE Committee members have experience and knowledge in the core competencies required for general registration in the profession, including experience in training, teaching, and assessment of professional competencies in psychology.

The NPE Committee meets in Melbourne between four – six times per year over two business days.
